FROM THE DIRECTOR

Starting to plan summer camps each winter is a great way to forget about the snow for a while and to consider how we can continue to improve our experience. This year, I think we have done that with the move of our overnight camp to New Hampton School in New Hampton, NH.

Each year, we assemble a great collection of coaches who work hard to deliver the best-possible coaching and learning environment and this year will be no different.

Our core philosophy is to provide individualized instruction that is based on strong fundamental development – and to do so in a setting that is positive and fun. It is rewarding to see more and more players in the Burlington Free Press who are having success at the high school level, knowing that we may have played some small role in that success. We have campers from all over New England, as well as Ontario, Quebec and New Brunswick and that diversity creates a unique and exciting environment for our camp. If we do things right, which we are acutely focused on, our goal is to have the one week of camp be equivalent to a season's worth of basketball during the winter. I hope you can join us at Norwich this summer!

I think our staff, positive coaching style and the teaching environment it fosters really separates our camp. We have coaches who have played on some of the country's best AAU and High School teams and college and preparatory school coaches who have coached for many, many years. We all look forward to getting "back to the basics" —and taking everyone's game to the "Next Level" ;)

I never would have developed into the player I was, or developed the deep love of the game that I did, without the investment my parents made in sending me to summer camps. I still remember being the youngest camper - and only girl! - at the Fastbreak Basketball Camp in Lennoxville, Quebec and how meaningful those summer opportunities were to my growth. Now, as a parent of two aspiring players and having spent this past winter working with young players, I see both sides of it every day and you have my full commitment to make sure we deliver the best camp we can!

Each camper will receive the necessary individual and team instruction for a successful summer of basketball. Players are encouraged to attend with teammates and friends. Those who do will be grouped together for camp upon request.

Campers will be broken down into groups based on skill level and experience and will be provided with positional instruction as well as team competition. There will be a heavy emphasis placed on evaluating each player's strengths and weaknesses and putting them into a competitive environment to hone their skills.

OUR GOAL IS TO DEVELOP BETTER ATHLETES, BETTER PLAYERS AND BETTER TEAMMATES

Players will receive specialized instruction in:

- shooting
- passing
- ball-handling
- moving without the basketball
- setting screens
- individual defense
- team defensive concepts
- In order to help each camper improve their game, we will incorporate several teaching techniques used on the college level, including film breakdown.
- There will also be special sessions which outline the necessary conditioning and strength training steps for players to take their game to the next level.
- There will be an informational session for campers on the college selection process, recruiting, the importance of academics and keys to taking your game to the next level.

In each of the last two years, we have sold out both weeks of our overnight camp, capping each week at 150. This year, we will cap our overnight camp at 100 once again and offer a day camp experience at Colchester High School in July and August. We staff our camp with the best possible teachers of the game, carefully screened for their understanding of the game and ability to teach fundamentals as well as higher level concepts for the older or more advanced players. We have decorated high school, prep school and university level coaches as well as collegiate players from all Divisions.
